This diagram shows a complex assembly with multiple layers and components. Key features include:

- Top Layer (2): The outermost curved surface.
- Internal Structure (36, 38, 74, 90): Various internal frames and supports.
- Mechanical Components (56, 60, 63, 66, 68, 76a, 84, 92): Springs, dampers, and other mechanical parts.
- Force Indicators (F_s , F_{T1}): Arrows indicating forces applied to different parts of the assembly.
- Dimensions (D1): A vertical dimension line labeled D1 spanning several layers.
- Other Labels (4c, 4d, 4e, 50, 53, 56b, 56c): Specific points or regions within the assembly.

Fig. 9A is an exploded perspective view of a medical device assembly. The assembly includes a main shaft (101) with a proximal handle (102) and a distal tip (103). The handle (102) is shown in two views: a top view (106a) and a side view (106b). The side view (106b) shows a control knob (109) with a central button (106c). The shaft (101) has a proximal section (140) with a textured surface (148) and a distal section (142) with a smooth surface. A proximal cap (146) is shown at the top left, and a proximal cap (147) is shown at the top right. A proximal cap (145) is shown at the bottom right. A proximal cap (144) is shown at the bottom left. A proximal cap (143) is shown at the bottom right. A proximal cap (154) is shown at the bottom left. A proximal cap (146) is shown at the bottom right.

A perspective view of the front side of the device 100. The front face 1202 features a large display area 1287 and a series of horizontal bars or keys 1289. Below the display area, there are several circular elements 1291 and 1295. To the right, there is a complex assembly of components including a spring 1263, a lever 1267, and other mechanical parts 1225, 1227, 1263, 1292, and 1293. Arrows indicate directions DL (downward) and PL (parallel to the front face).
